

Follow

RESTAURANTS

foobooz

Subscribe

NEWSLETTERS • ACCOUNT • SIGN OUT

NEWS

Farewell, Twenty Manning. Hello, Little Water

Twenty Manning is closing, making way for a new restaurant by the couple behind River Twice. Plus: pizza news you can use, the vinyl cocktail bar scene continues to grow, and Almyra has a new happy hour.

by JASON SHEEHAN • 1/16/2024, 4:54 p.m.

Devoted foodies and restaurant newbies love Foobooz. Sign up now for our twice weekly newsletter.

EMAIL ADDRESS

SUBSCRIBE

TRENDING

- 1 Farewell, Twenty Manning. Hello, Little Water
- 2 The Best Non-Alcoholic Cocktails on Philly Menus Right Now
- 3 East Stroudsburg Renovated Contemporary House for Sale
- 4 Quinta Brunson Is the Winner Philly Needs In Light of the Eagles
- 5 The Best Winter Resorts For Skiing and Snowboarding Near Philly

Okay, how how could some leftovers?

The Leftovers

The bar at Almyra. / Photograph by Gab Bonghi

You guys remember At The Table out in Wayne? If you don't, you should definitely read this review.

But for the rest of you, I just heard that chef Alex Hardy is throwing his first ever collaboration dinner with sister sommeliers Chiara and Alessandra Branchers, proprietors and wine makers at Cantina Casetto. He's calling it Cantina Casetto At The Table and it'll be a full night of Italian dishes and paired wines. It's happening on Thursday, January 18th and there'll be just one seating, at 7 p.m. Tickets will run $150, and you can make your reservations here.

We've talked about Almyra before — the new upscale Greek restaurant